

Smartphone supply chains expect strong orders through July into August

[DIGITIMES, 20140701]

Demand cooled off in the second quarter of the year due to slower-than-expected development of 4G devices in markets such as China in addition to high reserves from vendors. However, telecom providers and handset vendors have since resolved related issues and expect demand will increase for new smartphones in markets both in and out of China.